sal-ads, fruits and i-ces, and a nice hot bird, And just one well iced bot-tle of good run a-cross your sis-ter and she smiles so sweet, You turn your head a-way but just for drawbacks there are plen-ty, for you can't know all The players though you stay there just the wine. Some fel-low that you hard-ly know ex-cept to nod, His shame. No an-swer can you think of, and you know quite well, The same. I sat down with a par-ty of ve-ry charm-ing boys, My card up to the sup-per room will send; In-sists on cut-ting in, the line to which her ques-tion soon will tend; For she looks on with sur-prise, as she mon-ey they soon got, a steal I fear. But as I went a-way, I girl he'd like to win, And asks in tones en-tic-ing "Who's your friend?"
asks you with her eyes, The sim-ple lit-tle ques-tion, "Who's your friend?"
much re-gret to say, The words that passed a-mong them I did hear.

REFRAIN. Slow.
