world is wet with-out a doubt; we'll have to vote it dry." mf And then the Mon-key said, "I'm vot-ing wet, but I am feel-in' dry, And the Cam-el is a so-da-sip-pin', cel-lar-snif-fin' guy!" "I knew this pro-hi-bi-tion stuff would sure-ly start a fuss!" Said the Wal-la Wal-la, Wal-la Wal-la, Wal-la Wal-a-rus.

set-tle this de-bate. I nom-i-nate the Cam-el as the tem-p'rance can-di-date!" The Al-li-ga-tor an-swered, "We will let the peo-ple choose: Let's nom-i-nate an Elk or Moose to rep-re-sent the booze." The 'Rang-a Tang was si-lent; he kept work-ing in the dark, And bought up all the booze that he could find a-board the ark. The Ad - der add - ed up the votes, and then they heard him cry, "A - las, my friends, this is the end! The world is vot - ed dry!" mf And now the sold it by the jug; The Ot-ter heard a-bout it and he told the Pinch-ing Bug. The Ot-ter is a spot-ter; he has spot-ted quite a lot; They went and pinched the Leop-ard and they pinched him on the spot. The Badg-er swore a war-rant out and search'd the Mon-key's bunk. He found a case of whis-ky and a lot of oth-er junk. They al-so search'd the El-e-phant (the El - e-phant was drunk) And found a keg of li- quor in the bot- tom of his trunk. mf Now broth-er, said, "Good morn - ing, Judge." The Kan - ga - roo put on his specs and said, "Now, Mis - ter Monk, You're charged with hav - ing al - co - hol con - cealed be - neath your bunk." "It's med - i - cine, Your Hon - or," said the Mon - key with a leer; "It's for my er - y - sip - e - las; I pour it in my ear." "I'll fine you fif - ty," said the Judge, "or thir - ty days in jail." "Try and get it!" said the Mon-key, as he man - i - cures his tail.

Allegretto

mf Just then they heard a fear-ful crash and felt an aw-ful shock. — "Good heav-ens!" said Rhode Is-land Red, "We've struck a Ply-mouth Rock!" — The Elk looked out the win-dow, then he gave a star-tled blat, And his
