The piano accompaniment is in the grand staff, marked p. The melody continues in the right hand, while the left hand provides harmonic support with chords and single notes.

The second verse of the song. The vocal line continues with lyrics: "Then I met some more. All seemed en-tranc - ing," and "Then I met some men. All were quite pleas - ing,". The piano accompaniment continues in the grand staff, featuring a trill marked 'a' in the right hand during the second line of the verse.

For my ro-manc-ing, And I loved a score. Most ev-ry
If just for teas-ing, I loved five or ten. And each one time I'd meet one, My heart would start a-bumb-ing;

seemed more kind-ly, Than those who'd gone be-fore him;

When I'd greet one, My heart went fas-ter thump-ing, Then one I'd love blind-ly, And in his turn a-dore him, Then one day, 'twas in May, came you; I loved you too.

night, moon was bright, came you; I loved you too.

CHORUS

You're the fin-est of them all,
 You're the fin-est of them all,

On - ly one that I re - call For you are On - ly one that I re - call You are a peach-es and cream, And you are youth's sweet - est dream

 mas - ter - ful thing, To an - y wo - man a king

You are the lov - li - est one, Nic - est and best Un - der the sun;
 You are the man - li - est one, Nic - est and best Un - der the sun;

Beat all the rest I've a-dored them big and small,
Beat all the rest I've a-dored them big and small,

I've a-dored them short and tall.
I've a-dored them short and tall.

Girls have somethings a-bout them; Girls I can't do with-out them;
Men have somethings a-bout them; Men I can't do with-out them;

But you're the fin-est of them all.
But you're the fin-est of them all.
