INTRO.
Moderato

The ver-y lat-est fad Is to be-come a dad To some poor or-phan a-cross the sea; —
Al tho' I have-n't met This lit-tle an-gel yet, I know she's win-some as she can be; —

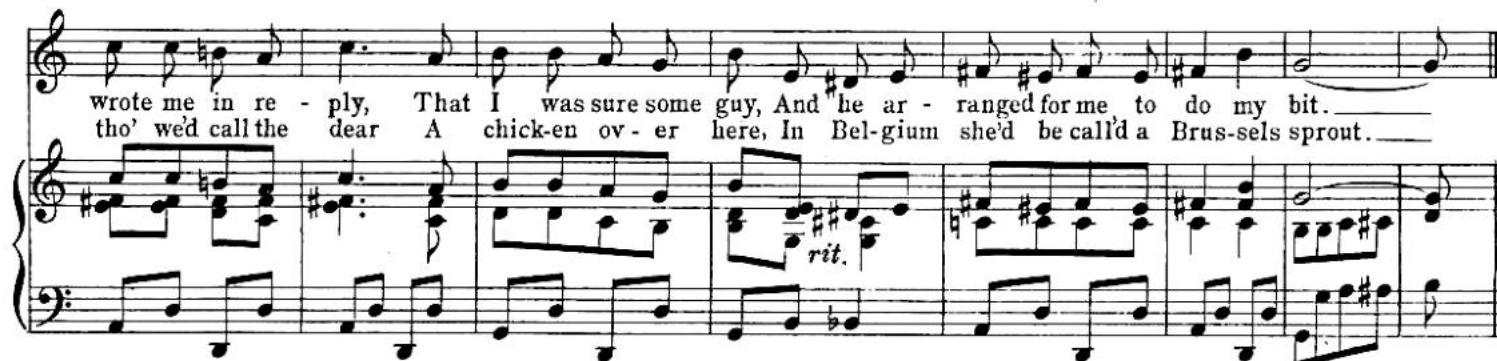

And when I thought it o'er, I felt this cru-el war Must make a lov-ing dad of me. — I She's full of tem-pe-ra-ment, To such a great ex-tent That she will make a hit with me. — She wrote a let-ter to A Bel-gian chap I knew, My of-fer made with him an aw-ful hit; — He craves af-fec-tion too, As all nice ba-bies do, For love's a thing she can not do with-out; — Al-wrote me in re-ply, That I was sure some guy, And he ar-ranged for me to do my bit. — tho' we'd call the dear A chick-en ov-er here, In Bel-gium she'd be call'd a Brus-sels sprout. —

REFRAIN

So I've a - dop-ted a Bel - gian ba - by, A lit-tle thing from Brus-sels town;

a tempo

If she'll on-ly be my dar-ling, And just mine a-lone, — She can have most ev-'ry thing in all this world I own. — For she's a won-der-ful lit - tle la - dy, A reg-u-lar pre - cious pearl; — { To take care of Bel - gian ba - bies is the lat - est rage, — And the You should hear her speak "ze Eng-lish" in her own sweet way; — Why, she one I've got is on-ly eigh-teen years of age. — } So I've a - dop-ted a Bel - gian ba - learned to call me pa-pa on-ly yes - ter - day. — } by, A beau-ti - ful Brus - sels girl. So I've a - girl. —
