Allegretto

1. We strolled beneath the sil-v'ry moon, where all was gai-e - ty, And burning glances 2. oth - er night, the same old moon, down by the raging sea; An-other man—but there, full soon, He shower'd down on me. He spoke of love, that handsome man, He that, of course, Is just 'tween you and me. His arm around my waist he placed, I sigh'd—and such a sigh! Then, in in-passion'd tones, he cried, "Oh, pray will you be ra - ther liked the thrill! He drew my face quite close to his, Then nearer, nearer
