I
A sweet little girl and I,
United once upon a time;
But I long to be anigh,
Her when the tuneful bells' chime,
In her nit Sunday attire,
Fair Gabrielle goes to pray;
As an angel's I admire,
Her beautiful face and gay.

CHORUS.

A young lovely girl and I,
Walk close together sometime,
In ecstasy I pace by
Her as I hear the bells' chime.

II

On Sunday morning at nine,
When the birds warble their rhyme;
I will ask her to be mine,
While the rythmus bells' yet chime
As down toward home we stride,
In joyful glory sublime;
Just as two young groom and bride,
We do hear the Church bells' chime.

CHORUS.

III

I recall the days of yore;
That I love her 't is long time,
But now I wond say any more,
Until the Sunday bells' chime.
If one day she will be mine,
It must be in summer time;
In the very bright sunshine,
We'll be marry when bells' chime.

CHORUS.

When the bells chime.

I
Nous étions ma mie et moi
Comme vieilles connaissances,
Et nous allions, pleins d'émoi,
A l'aube de nos espérances.
Dimanche carillonnant
Faisait prier Gabrielle
Ainsi qu'un ange charmant,
Ma Gabrielle, ma belle.

REFRAIN

Le dimanche avec ma mie,
Tous deux nous rêvions parfois,
Lorsque la cloche ravie,
Eveillait l'écho du bois.

II

Viennent encor le dimanche
Les oiseaux et les refrains,
La cloche et la voile blanche
Saluant les cieux sereins!
Et pour mon âme qui tremble
Je demanderai sa main,
Quand refleuriront ensemble
Les roses de mon jardin.

REFRAIN.

III

Ah ! resongeant à l'ivresse
De mes amours au matin,
Mon cœur pousse sa jeunesse
Vers le dimanche argentin.
Si jamais revient ma mie
Que ce soit dans les rayons
Du ciel des saisons bénies,
A la voix des carillons!

REFRAIN.
